Government of Maharashtra

Deependra Singh Kushwah I.A.S.
CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

It is a privilege to learn about the Global Sustainability Summit (GSS) 2026, being organized by the Indian Institute of Sustainable Development (IISD) at Vigyan Bhawan, New Delhi under the inspiring theme #NowForClimate. I sincerely appreciate IISD and its partners for creating a global platform that brings together governments, industry, academia, innovators, and civil society to accelerate climate action through meaningful dialogue and collaborative solutions.

For MIDC, sustainability is fundamental to how we envision and build Maharashtra's industrial future, where economic growth, environmental stewardship, and social responsibility must progress together. Maharashtra has consistently shown that industrialization and sustainability can complement each other—through integrated industrial estates, green infrastructure, water conservation and reuse, CETPs, renewable energy integration, and environmentally compliant planning that reduces the environmental footprint of industrial growth while strengthening long-term competitiveness.

The State's forward-looking initiatives in sectors such as Electric Vehicles, Data Centres, Electronics & Semiconductor Manufacturing, Green Hydrogen, Renewable Energy, Circular Economy, and Sustainable Logistics further reinforce Maharashtra's vision of becoming a preferred destination for responsible and future-ready investments. These initiatives are aligned with India's commitments towards Net Zero, Mission LiFE, the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), and the vision of Viksit Bharat 2047.

The spirit of #NowForClimate reminds us that climate action is no longer a future aspiration—it is a present-day responsibility. For industrial development agencies, this means designing infrastructure that is resilient, resource-efficient, technology-enabled, and capable of supporting sustainable economic transformation for generations to come.

I commend the Indian Institute of Sustainable Development (IISD) and all partner organizations for convening this important global dialogue. I am confident that the Global Sustainability Summit 2026 will foster impactful partnerships, encourage knowledge exchange, and inspire innovative solutions that advance sustainable industrial development in India and beyond.

On behalf of the Maharashtra Industrial Development Corporation, I extend my best wishes to the organizers, distinguished speakers, delegates, and participants for the grand success of the Global Sustainability Summit 2026.
